

The Lowdown in Lobsterville

VOLULME ONE

DE CEMBEER 2004

Christmas Tree Contest

The annual Christmas tree decorating contest is under way. Once again, the competition has been fierce. But all have now been eliminated except our two finalists. They are – Little Lindsay Little and Klaw Kringle. Anything could happen and anyone could win.

The locals are still reeling from the upset in our local pumpkin carving contest. For those of you who missed it, a relatively unknown Lionel Lobster shocked the old timers by beating Johnny Big Claw. Lionel, a newcomer on the pumpkin carving scene, produced an intricate carving that left no doubt as to the new champion.

Now the stage is set for the showdown between Little Lindsay Little and Klaw Kringle. Will the newcomer once again prevail or will Klaw Kringle hold on to his title?

For those of you following this contest, our final judging will be on Monday, December 20th, 2004, and the judges will be the Honorable Barry, a local engineer known for his classic lines and strong sentiments regarding what is right and what is just not acceptable, and the Honorable Karina, a local artist who has produced many works of art and who has a real eye for the distinction between mediocre and distinguished.

Results of this contest will be published in a future edition of the Lowdown.

Christmas Eve Feast Scheduled

You are cordially invited to this year's feast – to be held, once again, on the shores of Lobsterville just north of City Hall. This Christmas Eve extravaganza is hosted by the Lobsterville Ladies each year and, once again, it promises to be a special feast. The menu consists of tenderly grilled finger steaks with homemade clam chowder and crab cakes. Dinner begins at 6:00 p.m. sharp. Come early as the finger steaks go quickly.

We hope to see you there.

Claws and Tails

First, an apology for the lack of color in this edition. Our color press is currently inoperative. We hope to have it fixed by the time our next edition goes to press.

Second, we are looking for sponsors for our upcoming Valentine decorating contest. Those of you who have been sponsors in the past will be contacted right after the first of the year.

Third, we are putting together our volley ball tournament for the coming year. If you have a team or would like to join a team, please contact us.

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL and
TO ALL A GOOD NIGHT
