

The Lowdown in Lobsterville

VOLUME FIVE

SECOND APRIL 2005

Earth Day Celebration

Once again, we have reason to celebrate. April 22nd is Earth Day. Since this day is celebrated in appreciation of our earth and all that is in it, we will be celebrating with a clam bake instead of the traditional finger steak BBQ. The way we got it figured, there are more clams out there than fingers and, therefore, we are doing our part to preserve the non-renewable resources of the planet. Join us for the clambake starting at 6:00 p.m. Friday the 22nd at our favorite beach, Lobster Sands.

And So It Begins

The signs are already appearing – and we don't mean the signs of spring. We mean the election signs. That's right. Lobsterville is electing a new mayor and the lines are already being drawn in the sand. We have the liberals lining up behind their candidate – Louie Lobster. Those of you familiar with the happenings around Lobsterville will remember that Louie boiled and buried all the eggs for the Easter Egg hunt and I am sure that will weigh in his favor. The conservatives are lining up behind their hero – Linus Lobster. Linus is relatively new to the neighborhood but we have been assured that we will be impressed with his stand on the issues as well as the social gatherings he intends to hold to familiarize the local residents with he and his family. It promises to be an interesting election. Get out there and register for the November election. For those who are not familiar with politics in Lobsterville, there are no primaries – all candidates campaign until the general election. So get used to seeing those campaign signs.

Other positions being vied for are librarian, party commissioner and garbage lobster. More on these candidates in future issues.

Reports from Halifax

Recently, a group of our residents, your local editor included, got together and headed off to Canada, Halifax to be exact, to visit relatives and friends. A good time was had by all. As a matter of fact, such a good time was had that the group had to delay its return by a day so the sub driver could get over his hangover. The relatives rolled out the red carpet for us. They had a crab and cheese sampling social on the eve of our arrival. We also enjoyed a night of country and western music and “claw stepping”. I guess this new dance is all the rage in Canada. We toured local historical sites and enjoyed local cuisine. In honor of our visit, a finger steak BBQ was held on the beach the night before our departure. Along with the finger steaks and clam chowder, wine imported from the Okanagan Valley was enjoyed by all – hence the delay in our departure. We wish to extend a big thank you to our friends and family to the north and invite them down for some Maine hospitality when they get the notion to travel.

Claws and Tails

If you are feeling lucky, there is a tour heading for Atlantic City for fun and gambling. Or just for fun if you prefer. If you are interested, contact Lucky.

Bingo is starting up on April 27th and each Wednesday night thereafter throughout the summer. We start at 7:00 p.m. down at the Crustacean Parlor. Hope to see you there.

Has anyone been receiving strange phone calls? We at the Lowdown are investigating rumors that crank calls are being received by some of our residents. Information is vague but we will keep you informed as more information becomes available.
